

While there are many stories about Christmas, this story is unlike any you have ever heard because it is destined to go down in history as the most remarkable Christmas story ever told. Why? Because this story reveals the historical significance of the end of a new beginning of Christmas. Even more than Christmas, this is a story of faith, and this is a story about the power of belief. The belief of Saint Nicholas Klausenstein, a young scientist born in a small village in southern Kentucky. Most of all, this story will leave a snowflake-shaped imprint on the warmest part of your heart. With that, I extend my warmest greetings from the coldest place on earth- the North Pole! My name is... well, that's a secret for now. But, I assure you, this story won't be, because this is a story that you will never forget!
